

CONNECTIONS

SUMMER IS IN FULL SWING, STAY SAFE.

Summer is such a great time of year because we get to spend a lot of time outdoors, traveling, camping, day trips and more. But this also leaves our homes open to burglaries. Have you checked your security system or your home and grounds for vulnerable areas you did not think of before? Do you need a system upgrade? Remember, Allied security consultants are experts in keeping your homes and businesses safe. If you need a new survey of your home or an upgrade, give your security consultant a call.

Hot Topic: Who Has the Keys to Your Home or Business?

When was the last time you thought about rekeying your locks? If you just bought a home, you certainly want to make sure previous owners or others don't have the ability to enter your home while you are away, or sleeping for that matter. If you have a business, you should rekey your locks periodically because former employees or owners could have the ability to enter your business and you may not be sure who has copied your keys. Rekeying is a great alternative to purchasing new locks and a more affordable solution. Allied also has keyless locks and managed access services to help prevent these situations for both homes and businesses.

ANNOUNCING BURROUGHS PARTNERSHIP FOR BANK EQUIPMENT

Technology Done Better.

We are pleased to announce that Allied now has the ATM and cash recycler equipment and services to further extend our line of banking business offerings. Burroughs is one of the nation's leading bank equipment and services companies and, through this partnership, we believe we will be able to serve our financial business customers even better. Some of the brands we service include: NCR, Diebold, Wincor, Nautilus Hyosung, and Fujitsu. Call your local Allied financial security consultant today to learn more about our new products and services in your area.

IS YOUR SECURITY SYSTEM MONITORED BY PHONE LINES? NOW IS THE TIME TO UPGRADE.

If your security system is monitored by phone lines, you may have experienced some interruptions from your monitoring center as phone carriers switch from analog to digital for short periods of time. We believe this issue will become more prevalent as more and more consumers use digital communication services. Another risk in having phone lines for alarm monitoring is they can be cut by perpetrators. This isn't a scare tactic, but rather a reality we all must consider in the safety of our homes, businesses, and families. Upgrading your system to support Internet or cellular monitoring is an important decision you may want to start thinking about as hard line security becomes obsolete. Contact one of our security consultants to learn more about your options and what types of discounts we have available for upgrading your system.

Video Verification: What is it and why is it important?

Video Verification is the use of captured video or real-time video in which the video information or recording is aligned with the action that initiated an alarm event, and assists in determining the action to be taken for the alarm event. Video Verification actually delivers the video to the central station during an alarm event. Why is this important? Rather than relying solely on alarms, video verification allows alarm centers and police departments to verify the event prior to sending enforcements. This cuts down on false alarms, false alarm dispatch, and increases the likelihood the perpetrator will be apprehended. Video Verification is now a highly recommended addition to business security systems, but there are also video verification products for residential security systems as well.

EVERYDAY SAFETY TALK

Do you park your car outside at night and leave the garage door opener in it?

If so, someone can break into your car, open the garage, and have direct access to your home.
